Civil Engineering
HH Engineering Ltd.
Summer '08

Last summer I was on an internship with a civil engineering firm out of Detroit, MI called HH Engineering Ltd. I received the internship, the summer before my freshmen year, and actually started working the summer after my freshmen year.

A lot of my colleagues thought an internship as a freshmen wasn't possible, well I'm here to tell you it is. I was working at a country club over the summer and simply got to talking to the member I was caddying for. Small talk turned into an internship. I said I was going to Michigan State and I wanted to study civil engineering, and she hired me in her firm. My story goes to show that a little can always be more than it seems. I was just doing my job, and through conversing with the member and getting to know a person, I got rewarded.

During my internship, I did a lot of field work, which is expected of a internship. I enjoyed it. I got to be outside and visit new places in the state as well as actually see all the different projects that a civil engineer can be involved in. The experience broadened my vision of the discipline and really got me excited to finish my. My advice to anyone is that you should take advantage of every situation because you never know what may become of it. Another hint is to be genuine. Many employers want to see the real you and your actions, not a practiced
